PART I

Core Values & Principles

ICONIC Board–credentialed practitioners are recognized by their commitment to a holistic philosophy of health that integrates evidence-informed practice with the full spectrum of human experience — what we call the "science and soul" approach. This integration is not incidental; it is foundational.

Integrity Honesty, ethical courage, and consistency between values and actions.

Competence Continuous learning and practice within defined scope.

Respect Honoring client autonomy, dignity, and cultural identity.

Science & Soul Evidence-informed practice honoring the whole person — body, mind, spirit.

Accountability Responsibility for professional conduct and outcomes.

Transparency Honest communication about credentials, methods, and limitations.

Inclusion Culturally responsive practice affirming every person's dignity.

Collaboration Partnership with clients and other professionals.

"Science and Soul": ICONIC Board holds that rigorous, evidence-informed practice and a deep reverence for the full human experience are complementary — not in tension. This integration is reflected throughout these Standards.

PART II

Standards of Ethical Conduct

STANDARD 1

Competence & Scope of Practice

Practitioners provide services only within the boundaries of their education, training, credential level, and demonstrated competence.

- Practitioners do not diagnose, treat, prescribe, or cure physical or mental health conditions unless separately licensed to do so under applicable law.
- Practitioners represent their credentials accurately and do not imply medical licensure or authority they do not hold.
- When a client presents issues beyond the practitioner's competence, the practitioner refers promptly to an appropriately qualified professional.
- Practitioners maintain competence through continuing education, supervision, and ongoing study.
- Practitioners practicing a new modality acquire sufficient training and supervision before offering it to clients.

Scope Warning: In many jurisdictions, making health claims, offering diagnoses, or suggesting treatments without the appropriate license may constitute the unlicensed practice of medicine. Practitioners are responsible for compliance with all applicable laws.

STANDARD 2

Confidentiality & Privacy

Practitioners protect the privacy and confidentiality of client information and records.

- Practitioners disclose client information to third parties only with explicit written consent, except as required by law.
- Practitioners implement reasonable safeguards to protect client records from unauthorized access or loss.
- Where applicable, practitioners comply with HIPAA and all applicable state privacy laws.
- Practitioners inform clients at outset about confidentiality, its limits, and circumstances requiring disclosure.
- Practitioners continue to protect client confidentiality indefinitely after the professional relationship ends.

STANDARD 3Informed Consent

Practitioners obtain meaningful informed consent before initiating any professional services. Informed consent is an ongoing process.

- Before services begin, practitioners provide clear information about services, methods, expected outcomes, fees, and credentials.
- Practitioners use language and formats that clients can understand.
- Practitioners respect a client's right to decline, modify, or withdraw consent at any time without penalty.
- Practitioners clearly disclose that ICONIC Board credentials are voluntary recognitions — not state licenses.

STANDARD 4Client Welfare & Safety

The welfare of the client is the primary obligation of every ICONIC-credentialed practitioner.

- Practitioners place client wellbeing above personal, financial, or competitive interests.
- Practitioners do not exploit client vulnerability or the power differential of the practitioner-client relationship.
- When a client's safety is at risk, practitioners take appropriate action including referral to emergency services.
- Practitioners support clients in accessing appropriate medical or mental health care when indicated.
- Practitioners do not discourage clients from seeking licensed professional treatment.

STANDARD 5Professional Boundaries

Practitioners maintain clear professional boundaries in all client relationships.

- Practitioners do not engage in sexual, romantic, or exploitative relationships with current clients.
- Practitioners exercise careful judgment regarding personal or business relationships with former clients.
- Practitioners avoid multiple relationships that could impair professional judgment.
- Practitioners set and maintain appropriate physical, emotional, and relational boundaries.

STANDARD 6Honest Representation & Credentials

Practitioners represent their credentials, qualifications, services, and methods with complete accuracy.

- Practitioners accurately describe all credentials held and do not claim credentials they do not possess.
- Practitioners clearly distinguish ICONIC Board credentials from state licensure in all communications.
- Practitioners do not misrepresent the benefits, efficacy, or scientific status of services offered.
- Practitioners do not use titles implying medical or clinical authority they do not hold.
- Practitioners do not display ICONIC Board marks after a credential has lapsed or been revoked.

Credential Clarity: ICONIC Board credentials are a mark of professional accountability — not substitutes for medical or clinical licensure. Practitioners must ensure prospective clients understand this distinction.

STANDARD 7

Legal & Regulatory Compliance

Practitioners comply with all applicable laws and regulations in every jurisdiction where they practice.

- Practitioners are personally responsible for understanding and complying with all applicable federal, state, and local laws.
